Faculty teaching the two required courses for the gerontology as a secondary major program collected data to measure four of our seven student learning outcomes—theory, ageism, communication and critical thinking. For all of the SLOs the majority of students performed at or above our standard of 80% mastery. In review of assessment data we changed our program SLOs to more closely align with the university SLOs, have identified the activities and assignments that will be used to measure these outcomes and have made plans to automate the data collection through CANVAS.
