
GERON 710

Creativity and Aging

With age comes experience and freedom, both of which are springboards for better understanding the world and putting ideas together in new and exciting ways. In this class, students will learn about the changes that happen developmentally and psychologically as a person ages and how this affects creativity, as well as how creativity influences the aging process. Students will also experience hands-on activities that allow them to explore their own creativity through multiple mediums, such as music, visual arts, and written language.