What is KSA and why should I join?

The Kinesiology Student association (KSA) is the undergraduate student organization within the department of Kinesiology at Kansas State University. It is an accredited SGA club within the university. The reason there is a KSA is to provide the undergraduate student a voice in the department and opportunities to develop professionally.

Objectives of KSA:

- Foster a spirit of loyalty to department and fellow students
- Friendship
- Cooperation
- Opportunities for the undergraduate student to grow as a person and professional

Being a KSA member in good standing requires

- Accumulating 50 or more points during the academic year
- Joining the club by paying club dues
- The benefits of being a member in good standing include consideration for departmental scholarships, leadership opportunities, and professional growth
- KSA will bring in a number of high quality speakers for students to interact with and learn from, involvement will strengthen your undergraduate experience

Point system - being a member in good standing requires a total of 50 or more points that are awarded as follows

Attending a monthly meeting	15 points
Participate in a sponsored event	15 points
Participating in departmental events	15 points

*KSA dues may be used to purchase food and drink related to organizational functions

KSA is for the student and run by elected students. KSA officer elections take place in the Spring for the following year. Any student interested in becoming an officer can contact Dr. Robert Pettay at pet7@ksu.edu for more information.
